

Your Personal Brand "Year in Review" Part 1 of a 3-Part Series

Part 2: Your Personal Brand Vision
Part 3: Your Personal Brand Action Plan

Introduction

Welcome to Executive Connections' "Managing Your Personal Brand" Part 1 of a 3-part series. At EC, we believe personal brand development is one of the keys to creating a strong reputation on- and off-line, and requires an active, ongoing personal brand management process.

Simply put, if YOU are not managing your career and personal brand, someone else will do it for you!

Just as you have likely helped your company or organization prepare next year's business and marketing plans, now is the time for you to develop similar written plans for your personal brand.

As a complimentary year-end "gift" to our EC friends and connections, we are sharing a few of the proven processes we use "one-on-one" with our C-level clients to help them proactively develop and manage their personal brands.

In 2012 and beyond, we highly recommend you adopt this yearly "Manage Your Personal Brand" process as a best practice.

Year In Review—Synopsis 2011

One of the most powerful tools we use with our clients to end each year is a Personal Brand "Year in Review" exercise. Think of this as writing an annual report summary for the business and brand called "Me Inc." Follow these simple steps to take inventory of your personal and professional accomplishments, as well as disappointments and challenges, in the current year.

Step 1: List your top 10 key personal and professional highlights for 2011. Of what are you most proud?
